How it works?

Hyaluronic acid is the key component of the skin to hold water. As we age, the amount of hyaluronic acid in the skin decreases. Hyaluronic acid is a naturally occurring polysaccharide in the skin; it's considered to have a greater capacity to hold moisture. In fact, one gram of hyaluronic acid is able to hold up to six liters of water. The skin is generally comprised of 3 major layers, the epidermis, dermis and subcutis. Hyaluronic acid exists in all layers of the skin. It adds moisture to the skin, and help it stay hydrated. When hyaluronic acid is injected into the dermis layer, they can have the effect of temporarily plumping wrinkles and fine lines.
